NO MORE JOINT CAUCUSES.

Midnight Caucus Without Results. Death of Dr. Williams. No Cumulative Voting. Supreme Court. Illicit Distillery. Commissioners.

Special Dispatch to the Virginian.

BALEIGH, N. C., February 1.— Dr. Samuel B. Williams, member of the House from Warren county, died here early this morning of pueumouia. He was 71 years of age and had been sick ever since the legislative session began. He was a practicing physician and was well-known. His death was reported in some of the papers last Saturday night. He came near dying that night, night.

The Republicans in the Legislature bave virtually given notice to the Populists that no more joint caucuses will be held until the Re-caucuses will be held until the Republicans get things to suit them.

The Caucus Committee with twenty members, Populists and Republicans, was in session until midnight last night. It received the draft of the county government bill, but took no positive action on it. The bill was drawn by the "Steering Committee," composed of Marien Butler, Richmond Pearson and others. This Steering Committee employed ex-Judge Spier Whitaker as conneal and he drafted most of the bill.

The section of this which provides for cumulative voting for county commissioners was again discussed last night. The Republicans are dead against it. It was argued last night that in Ohio the courts had, in the case of the State vs. Constantine decided this plan unconstitutional and an abridgement of the rights of a citizen.

The local fusionists last night arranged for a gerrymander of Ra-leigh's wards, which will give their party a majority of Aldermen.

The Republicans say that in the last campaign they promised, all over the State, that they should have a straight vote for all county officers, and they now say that they will have such a plan, with safeguards which will keep out of office incompetent men, both black and three gold scarr pure and one site. white.
